PRESIDENT CALLED WORLD PEACEMAKER

CHICAGO TOASTS AMERICAN EXECUTIVE AS POTENT INFLUENCE IN EVERY COUNTRY AT NEW YORK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BANQUET

New York, Nov. 21.—The Chamber of Commerce had its one hundred and thirty-seventh annual banquet to-night in Delmonico's.

Maurice K. Jessup, president of the chamber, presided, and with him at Joseph H. Choate, General Horace Porter, Brigadier General J. D. Long, Senator Andrew Montague of Virginia, Doctor Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, Alfred Moeller, M. G., and Lieutenant General Adm. R. Chauffe.

TOAST THE PRESIDENT.

The first toast of the evening was to the President of the United States, and the following to the King of England. Then followed the toast "England and America," to which Mr. Choate responded.

General Porter responded to the toast, "Diplomatic and Commercial Relations Between the Two Great Empires."

General Moeller, Virginian spoke to the toast "United States," and President Alderman to the toast "The Making of the National Spirit."

Mr. Choate's speech.

He said that during the last week there was a demonstration in this city and country that must carry home to the minds of our friends across the water the conviction that the peace that exists between these two countries can never be broken.

It is upon the united action of these two great nations that the peace of the world depends.

Referring to the entertainment of the chamber at a banquet in London by the London Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Choate said:

PRESIDENT'S INFLUENCE.

It was at that banquet that Lord Lansdowne affected this sentiment: "The President of the United States will in the years that he remains in office not only in his country but in the world, be a potent force for peace and for the good of the human race."

Within a few short weeks after the organization of that association, the President of the United States was elected by the hands of an assassin.

But the King never dies and the President of the United States is still on the scene, and his influence has been exemplified with marvellous force by the example of our present President.

THIRTY-ONE PEACEKEEPERS.

Now there has been no peace in the world since the end of the war. Sojourner Truth is still here to the lot of any man, English or King or President, to remind mankind that it is his duty to make kind and gentle to all.

Mr. Choate laudated the absence from the high seas of the American flag and said he hoped the voice of the chamber would be present in demanding that something be done to restore the flag to the sea.
